CIRCUIT COURT NOW IN SESSION

Only Two Criminal Cases With the Usual Number of Civil Suits.

Circuit court opened in this city on Monday with Judge E. B. Park presiding. Monday was taken up largely in making new citizens of the United States, there being a number in the city from all parts of the country to take out their second papers.

The case of the State of Wisconsin against Dr. A. L. Ridgeman was taken up on Tuesday and is still in progress at this writing. A jury was sequestered on Tuesday morning and several witnesses examined. Goggin & Bazeau, attorneys for the defendant, while the case is being prosecuted by District Attorney Briere.

George Wakely appeared before the court and plead not guilty to the charge of burglary against him, and the case of the state against Emil Prust was continued over till the next term of the circuit court.

It is probable that the term will raise up several weeks if all the cases on the calendar are tried out, as there are quite a number of them.

or a good salary does not profit one very much if no part of it is saved. Men have tried all kinds of schemes for saving money and for making it earn handsome profits. Most of these schemes prove failures.

About the only sure way is to deposit small amounts regularly and then invest carefully when enough is accumulated.

Our Savings Department will help you save and our officers are always ready to advise regarding investments.

Horatio Connell

began his vocal studies in this country, but some nine years ago went to Europe on the advice of Mine, Gadski to study with the celebrated Julius Stockhausen (who is a fellow student with Jenny Lind studied under Garcia). After finishing with Stockhausen he began singing in concert, oratorio, opera and recital throughout the Continent and England with great success. As a Lieder singer, especially, he won great praise in Germany, and was acknowledged as one of the leading oratorio singers in England, appearing with many of the famous societies in that country. He was no less successful as soloist with the leading orchestras, appearing with the London Symphony Orchestra, Henry Wood's Orchestra, Hallé Orchestra of Manchester, (Conducted by Dr. Richter), and the Liverpool Symphony Orchestra among others.

At Covent Garden he was engaged as one of the leading baritones and for two seasons had frequent and very successful appearances.

Mr. Connell will sing in Grand Rapids Thursday evening, December 12th, in the First Congregational church. This is an unusual opportunity. Don't miss it. The concert is given by the City Federation. Tickets $1.00. Advertisement.

Death of Mrs. W. H. Upham.

Mrs. W. H. Upham, one of the pioneer residents of Marshfield, died at her home in that city on Friday afternoon of illness due to a walk from pneumonia. In speaking of her death the Marshfield Herald has the following to say:

"In the early pioneer days of the city, she was a ministering angel in every home, caring for the sick, helping the needy and comforting the sorrowing. From these early days until this present time she has never ceased her labors of love, and even when the brave body began to fail, the spirit was undaunted and strong to end."

Words fail to tell the good that this noble woman has done not only in our own city but all over the state. Ever prominent in the temperance cause, the work of the church and school school; in fact there is not a department in work that has for its object the improvement of humanity's relation with God and the advancement of the best interests of Christian civilization, in which the presence of this beloved woman has not been felt. Truly her aim in life was to make the world better by her presence, and just how grandly she has succeeded, all who have loved and known her can testify.

Decesased was born January 21st, 1848, in Cleveland, Ohio. On December 18th, 1867, at Racine, she was united in marriage to William H. Upham who, besides her two adopted daughters—Mrs. E. E. Flinney of this city, and Mrs. Phil Sawyer of Oshkosh—survives her. She has been a constant resident of Marshfield since 1878."

Have Beautified Their City.

New London Press.—The city of Grand Rapids, Wis.—formerly a rough lumberman's town but now a center for the manufacture of paper from wood pulp and sulphite—has an improvement association which is doing much for its appearance. As the result of its work, the city has purchased the land on both banks of the Wisconsin river which divides Grand Rapids as the Wolf's divide us here. As the old sheds, rubbish heaps, and other unsightly objects that formerly disgraced it have been removed and the whole extent of the river banks inside the city will be laid on in a park system in accordance with the plans of a landscape architect.

The Consolidated Water Power & Paper company which operates an immense plant in the heart of the city, has set an example by turning its own grounds into a beautiful park open to the public. A like transformation has been wrought in the grounds surrounding the court house, city hall, jail and other public buildings.

Among the many subjects that will be treated during the sessions are that of testing milk, testing of seed corn and its improvement, and judging of same, testing the farm herd, growing and making silage, feeding for milk production, improvement of small gardens, control of weeds, and many other subjects that are of interest to the man engaged in agricultural pursuits.

There will be an evening meeting on Thursday, Dec. 5th and a lecture on Saturday afternoon to which all are invited.

CORN & DAIRY SCHOOL GOING

A Large Number of Farmers and Others are Finding the Sessions Interesting.

The Corn and Dairy school, given by the University of Wisconsin, College of Agriculture, under the auspices of the Wood County Agricultural Society, opened in this city on Monday morning with an enrollment of fifty-four. The instruction is free, the only charge being for the purpose of paying the expenses of securing quarters and for what little printing was necessary.

Besides the farmers in attendance the members of the Wood County training school are attending the sessions, and they should prove of innumerable value to these students who will be required to teach agriculture later on.

Robert Morris is president of the Wood County Association. Simon Worland, vice president, and Otto A. Leon, secretary, while the school is in charge of Prof. M. H. Jackson. The instructors are A. C. Baer, L. F. Gately and G. P. Norgard, members of the agricultural department of the University who are thoroly conversant with the subjects on which they will talk.

Programs have been prepared for the five days, and any person who will attend all of the sessions and have a receptive mind should be able to absorb a lot of information that will be of use to him later on.

Among the many subjects that will be treated during the sessions are that of testing milk, testing of seed corn and its improvement, and judging of same, testing the farm herd, growing and making silage, feeding for milk production, improvement of small gardens, control of weeds, and many other subjects that are of interest to the man engaged in agricultural pursuits.

The School as a Social Center.

In response to a call by Prof. Schwabe, a fair representation of the parents of the high school children attended a meeting in the Lincoln building Monday evening.

The purpose of this meeting was to discuss the opening of the school house for social and civic purposes, especially with reference to the social life of the high school, regularity of attendance, course of study and other like questions.

After considerable discussion a committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Babcock, Nettick, George and Miss Gaskill and Gibson to formulate a report embodying the sense of the meeting, to present to the adjourned meeting to be held Friday evening, Dec. 6th at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is desired.

—Not every man venturing into the city's musical whirl makes as agreeable an impression at first hearing as Horatio Connell, who entered the lists yesterday afternoon, at Mendelssohn Hall before an appreciative audience. The quality and range of his voice are his best possessions. His is a baritone voice, light in texture, yet colored with an infusion of basso sombreness. His vocal scale is well equalized, deep tones and high tones alike having rich, mellow timbre.—New York Press, January 11, 1910.

CORN & DAIRY SCHOOL GOING

A Large Number of Farmers and

Sessions Interesting.

The Corn and Dairy school, given by the University of Wisconsin, College of Agriculture, under the auspices of the Wood County Agricultural Society, opened in this city on Monday morning with an enrollment of fifty-four. The instruction is free, the only charge being for the purpose of paying the expenses of securing quarters and for what little printing was necessary.

The buyer has written Mr. Bell stating that he will be here on the day of the fair to buy all the horses between 1450 and 1600 pounds that are offered for sale.

The Johnson & Hill company will give a 50 pound sack of flour to the farmer bringing in the most fresh eggs on fair day.

Johnson & Hill will also give a second prize of a cañon dress, 12 yards, for the second largest lot of eggs brought in.

The Grand Rapids Brewing Co. will give an eighth of beer to the farmer bringing in the most empty kegs.

Little pigs are always in good demand and farmers having anything of this sort can find a ready sale for them.

Don't forget the date.

The Big Grain Show Next Saturday, Dec. 7th.

Arrangements have been completed for the big agricultural exhibit and contest Dec. 7th, at the Amusement Hall.

This promises to be the largest exhibit of the kind ever held in the state, and farmers and others interested will be present from all parts of the county and from some of the nearby counties.

It will not be a contest between professional exhibitors but every farmer will bring in samples of everything he raises whether he expects a prize or not. Many received prizes last year who did not really expect them.

We all know that there are a good many things left for us to learn and everybody will be intensely interested in the addresses, and in hearing why the winning exhibits get the prizes. This "why" will be the hint which will aid the buyers in choosing a little better seed for next year's crop.

There will be no charge for entries or admission to the show.

Monthly Stock Fair.

The date for the December stock fair will be Tuesday the 10th instant, and Manager Bell reports that the indications are that there will be a large crowd in on that day to attend. There is a good demand for new milch cows with prices at the top notch.

The Netland Packing company will pay the highest market price for fat stock, hogs, etc., and take all they can get.

A buyer has written Mr. Bell stating that he will be here on the day of the fair to buy all the horses between 1450 and 1600 pounds that are offered for sale.

Boy Bandits Sentenced.

The three boys who assaulted and attempted to rob George Wyatt, an aged man, at Stevens Point recently, were on Friday given sentence by Judge Park.

Morris Gulikson, fifteen years of age, was sent to the industrial school at Wausau to remain until he was 21. Myron O'Connor, 16 years of age, was given five years in the reformatory at Green Bay, and Earl Helm, who was the ringleader of the affair, was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary.

The three boys went to Wyatt's residence after supper while the old man was away with the intention of robbing him of a sum of money that he was supposed to have concealed in the house. While the boys were searching the house the old gentleman returned when Helm pounced onto him and beat him into insensibility. The other two boys ran, after which Helm also left the place. The boys were later rounded up by the police, when the Gulikson and O'Connor boys confessed.

Prize Winners go to Madison.

All the exhibits which win the first prizes at the Centex next Saturday will be sent to Madison to compete for the ribbons in the state contest to be held next month.

This state contest is a new departure and it will be watched with interest by farmers all over the state.

The prize winners from all the contests will be brought together at Madison and the blue ribbon exhibits there will be well advertised that the owner can charge most any price for all seed he has to sell for several years to come.

The transportation of the first prize produce to Madison will be attended by the Grand Rapids Banks.

Farmers Institutes.

Two farmers institutes will be held in Wood County during the coming winter, one at Milladore and one at Nekoosa. The one at Nekoosa will be held on January 23d and 24th, and the one at Milladore on Jan. 21 and 22. A cooking school will be conducted in connection with the Nekoosa institute.

Farmers Contest Free.

There will be no charge for admission or entries at the big Agricultural exhibit and contest next Saturday.

The exhibits will be open for inspection in the forenoon and addresses and discussions will occur in the afternoon.

Christmas Sale.

St. Catherine's Guild will hold a Christmas sale in the Eggers' land office on Friday and Saturday, December 13 and 14. There will be all kinds of fancy work suitable for Christmas gifts. On Saturday morning there will be a provision sale, and the sale of other articles will continue all day.

Horatio Connell, who gave a song recital at Mandeville Hall, yesterday afternoon, is a new baritone whose future will be awaited with great interest. His voice is rich and full, with a good range and shows evidence of good training. He was at his best yesterday in several German songs in which the dramatic element predominated.

CORPORATIONS SHOW GAIN

Total Receipts in Fees for Filing Articles With Secretary of State Are $122,251.

Frear has issued a statement showing that the total fees collected by his department for filing articles of incorporation for the fiscal year ending on June 30, 1912, were $122,251.40. The total fees for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911, were $79,896.20.

REFORMATORY IS WANTED

Board of Control Will Ask Next Legislature for Funds to Erect Building for Women.

Madison.

The state board of control will appeal to the next legislature for funds with which to build a women's reformatory and a men's home for the feeble minded. No other means of salvation are needed so urgently as these, it is stated by President Ralph E. Smith of the board. The state has no women's reformatory, the Milwaukee industrial school being in private management but under the board's inspection troupe time to time.

The Milwaukee school, also, is primarily for girls. Women offenders are sometimes sent to houses of the good shepherd in different cities, and the system has long called for change. The benevolent effects of the probation law would be greatly enhanced were the state to maintain a woman's reformatory of its own, in President Smith's opinion.

The last legislature authorized the selection of a site for a new home for the feeble minded, and the board will inform the legislature of its choice. Then it will ask the solons for an appropriation sufficient to build the structure. The home for the feeble minded at Chippewa Falls is taxed to its fullest capacity and one of the board's hardest tasks is the disposition of applications for entrance to the institution. Hence the necessity for another building.

EIGHTEEN YEARS FOR BOYS

Harry Berger and Edward Meyer, Janesville You're Convicted of Murder, Are Sentenced.

Janesville.

—Harry Berger, 17 years old, and Edward Meyers, 19 years old, convicted of the murder of Title Bergemann, 35 years old, were sentenced to eighteen years each in the state prison at Waupun by Circuit Judge George Grinn.

The case was sensational in that it brought about a civic awakening on the part of the people of this city, resulting in the revocation of the license of two saloon keepers and the driving out of the city of the immoral element.

The attorney for the boys asked for a stay of sentence in order to perfect an appeal for a new trial, which was refused.

Get Financial Information.

Madison.—To enable members of the next legislature to acquaint themselves with the financial affairs of the state in advance of the coming session, the state board of public affairs has sent to all members a copy of the budget report issued by the joint committee of finance at the last session. The public affairs board is now preparing a budget statement for the 1913 legislature in a form much more detailed and elaborate than that shown in the finance committee's report. It is hoped to have this report ready for the solons when they assemble in January.

Panama Locks Were Target

Plot to Wipe Out City of Los Angeles by Explosive and Fire Part of Dynamiter's Scheme—Would Turn Bandit to Secure Money.

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—Ortis E. McManigal related in the federal court here Monday stories of how the McNamara's, after the destruction of the Times, hatched the plots for more extreme violence and more desperate deeds than they had attempted before.

A plot to destroy the whole city of Los Angeles by explosion and fire, to make history on the coast date from the destruction of that city. Instead of from the date of the San Francisco earthquake, was among those of which the dynamiter told.

In desperate desire to carry out this dynamiting program, if the executive bailed, as he learned, it would cut off the money supply, John J. McNamara was ready to resort to the "hold-up" or highway robbery to get money, said his former companion, in crime.

John J. McNamara sought to get McManigal to go to Panama to blow up the canal locks under construction by the McNamee-Marshall company, was another interesting episode in the conspiracy, as related by the dynamiter.

The conversation in which most of these plans were disclosed said the dynamiter, occurred at the international headquarters in this city, April 7, 1911, only five days before J. B. McNamara and Ortis McNamee were arrested in Detroit.

J. J. McNamara while he, (J. B.) and McManigal were talking, said the witness, remarked that he had a scheme for Los Angeles, the plan being to get three or four "good fellows" locate this pocketful and perhaps winter there, and plot charges under them. Then, by using Schmidt's device for setting fire to the building in several places simultaneously, by the use of the clocks, chemicals, fuses and so forth, said the dynamiter, a number of big fires would be started in different places, and with the water supply cut off, the city would be wiped off the map.

If not sending McManigal on a hunting trip, said the witness, McNamara said he would send him to Panama to blow up the locks.

Decades Was One of the Most Striking Figures in Upper House of Congress.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Isidor Rayner, United States senator from Maryland, died here Monday of neuritis, from which he had been a sufferer for five years, following an acute illness of six weeks. Mr. Rayner lay in a comatose condition for nearly a week before passing away.

Senator Rayner attempted to enter actively into the Democratic campaign and met Bourke Cockran in joint debate at Baltimore late in September. The effort exhausted him and he became seriously ill immediately afterward. Before he entered congress he had attained a national reputation before he had ever done a thing.

REFORMATORY IS WANTED

Board of Control Will Ask Next Legislature for Funds to Erect Building for Women.

Madison.—The state board of control will appeal to the next legislature for funds with which to build a woman's reformatory and a new home for the feeble minded. No other new institutions are needed so urgently as these, it is stated by President Ralph E. Smith of the board. The state has no women's reformatory, the Milwaukee industrial school being in private management but under the board's inspection from time to time.

The Milwaukee school, also, is primarily for girls. Women offenders are sometimes sent to houses of the good shepherd in different cities, and the system has long called for change. The beneficial effects of the probation law would be greatly enhanced were the state to maintain a woman's reformatory of its own, in President Smith's opinion.

The last legislature authorized the selection of a site for a new home for the feeble minded, and the board will inform the legislature of its choice. Then it will ask the session for an appropriation sufficient to build the structure. The home for the feeble minded at Chippewa Falls is taxed to its fullest capacity and one of the board's hardest tasks is the disposition of applications for entrance to the institution. Hence the necessity for another building.

EIGHTEEN YEARS FOR BOYS

Harry Berger and Edward Meyer, Jamesville You're Convicted of Murder, Are Sentenced.

Jamestown.—Harry Berger, 17 years old, and Edward Meyer, 19 years old, convicted of the murder of Little Bergstrom, 35 years old, were sentenced to eighteen years each in the state prison at Waupun by Circuit Judge George Grinnin.

The case was sensational in that it brought about a civic awakening on the part of the people of this city, resulting in the conviction of the leaders of two saloon keepers and their driving out of the city of the immoral element.

The attorney for the boys asked for a stay of sentence in order to perfect an appeal for a new trial, which was refused.

GOT FINANCIAL INFORMATION.

Madison.—To enable members of the next legislature to acquaint themselves with the financial affairs of the state in advance of the coming session, the state board of public safety has sent to all members a copy of the budget report issued by the joint committee of finance at the last session. The public affairs board is now preparing a budget statement for the 1913 legislature in form much more detailed and elaborate than that shown in the finance committee's report. It is hoped to have this report ready for the solons when they assemble in January.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE CASE

The Experiences of M. F. Goron, Ex-Chief of the Paris Detective Police

Edited by Albert Keyzer

THE SOIREE AT THE RUE DE PRONY

IN MY JOURNAL when I note the many strange incidents in which I have played a part, there are pages on which I do not like to dwell. No, I do not care to look again on those pages finishing in a note of interrogation, somber dreams of which I have known only the first two acts, because the principal persons carried the remainder of the story into the tomb. These cases have caused me much worry and trouble, and one in particular, entered in my journal as "The Soiree at the Rue de Prony."

We have in Paris a large colony of Spaniards from South America—Chilian, Venezuelans, and others, as a richly numerous rich. They are pleasure-seekers, fond in their dress, noisy, talk, ostentatious and vain, scattering their money broadcast, to the delight of the Paris tradesmen and restaurateurs.

The people I shall call "Dominguez" had taken a charming little house in the Rue de Prony and, shortly after their arrival, gave an entertainment at which one hundred and forty people were present.

When Monsieur and Madame Dominguez went to their bedroom, an unpleasant surprise awaited them. The safe in the dressing room had been broken open, and everything in the way of money, jewelry, and valuable documents abstracted.

The next morning M. Dominguez was brought to me while I was breakfasting, and I at once went to meet him. He was very excited and began by upbraiding the police for not looking after his property, then he became a little calmer and asked me to accompany him to his house.

M. Dominguez had a large face burnt by the sun, deep-set eyes, and a way of looking sideways, a cunning look, that did not impress me favorably. His brought him at the door and we were not long reaching the Rue de Prony.

Fortunately, nothing had been disturbed there, and we went at once to the dressing room, where we found Madame standing with a rueful face before the open safe. No doubt was possible; it was the work of an artist in the profession, a man with a sure hand, who had not wasted time over the business.

M. Dominguez was ereing me curiously.

"Well, M. Goron," he said.

"This was not the work of a beginner," I replied.

"I am clever enough to see that, too," he remarked with a laugh. Then, after a pause:

"The thief must be found, M. Goron, do you understand? He must be found. Do not let expense stand in the way; I am prepared to put down at once any sum that may be required."

If M. Dominguez expected a reply he was disappointed, for I continued to make a careful investigation of the room in the hope of finding a clue. The thief, however, had not left what the police, with us, call a "visiting card"—some trifles that might help in the search.

"Was any one in charge of the upstairs rooms during the evening?" I asked Madame.

"Yes, one of the maids."

"Please send for her."

The maid came, looking very scared, and, after a deluge of tears, told me that several ladies had been in the dressing room after supper, "put a little powder on," and that no gentleman had gone upstairs.

"Were you upstairs all the evening?"

"No, sir; the greater part of the evening I was helping the other servants get supper ready. Besides, I had no idea that—that—" and a fresh torrent of tears followed.

Evidently she knew nothing, and I sent her about her business.

"Did you notice anything displaced or disturbed when you entered the dressing room this morning?" was my next question.

"No," retorted Madame, "no; or, rather, yes. This porcelain cup, and the ivory paper cutter, that are always on the safe, had been placed on that chair near the bed."

The thief, whoever he was, had handled these articles, and they now became objects of interest. The cup did not present any remarkable features, except that the thin coating of dust did not speak a well-regulated household. Then came the turn of the paper cutter, a large affair with an enormous monogram, and there, on the white ivory, was a small pinkish stain.

To an acute observer, every detail is of importance, and I first asked the husband and then the wife whether they had ever noticed the stain. They both looked at it carefully and shook their heads. No, they had no recollection of having ever seen it, but, of course, it might have been there before.

I had to be satisfied with that statement, and asked permission to take the paper knife with me.

I felt convinced that the robbery had been committed by one of the guests and inquired how many people they had entertained.

"One hundred and forty-two."

"Kindly give me the names."

Madame turned red, and then said: "You see, M. Goron, we have not been long in Paris, and I gave my friends blank invitation cards, which they filled up and sent to people among their own set."

"Then you don't know even the names of the remaining seventy-nine who spent the evening with you?"

OBJECT TO THE CHICKENS

Residents of Summer Place Alleged That Their Early Morning Rest Is Disturbed.

The dwellers in the residential section of Hastings-on-the-Hudson have become much excited over discussions of the question. Is it proper and right to maintain a poultry farm on a village plot? Since the days have lengthened and the sun rises early and the windows are kept open wide all night, it is maintained by those on the negative side of the discussion, rest sleep is out of the question. A petition setting forth all the arguments from the moral, economic and social points of view against chicken raising instead of village limits, has been circulated, and has the names of all who do not own chickens. One of the signers said the whole trouble was poration of a bantam rooster. What this fellow lacks in size he makes up in volume and shrillness of voice and in the zeal with which he indulges his talent for crowing in the early hours of the day. He is keyed too high, and his owner should feed him chalk every night. The petition describes in detail the annoyance of being roused out of a sound sleep by a loud cock-a-doodle-doo and the horror of lying awake to listen for the next summons from the other roosters.

One particularly loud-voiced Leghorn was found dead beside his coop a few days ago. It is said on of the neighbors at the risk of being shot, broke the rooster's neck. It took only a few days for the owner to get another lusty-lunged bird, and now there is some feeling.

To Separate Postage Stamps. A hot iron will separate postage stamps that have stuck together with loss of trade. This gives the taxicab drivers a monopoly, but, as the city authorities have stringent regulations covering the tolls and other matters, no trouble is expected from that source. Co-incident with this news comes the information from London that a society has been formed for the relief of indigent cab drivers who are now unable to reap a living owing to the inroads taxicabs have made on their fares.

Berlin Prohibits Horse Cab. While in most of the large cities of civilized countries the cabriolet reigns practically supreme, Berlin is the first metropolis to pass a law prohibiting horse-drawn cabs from carrying fares within its jurisdiction. Such an ordinance was put in force recently and that a society has been formed for the relief of indigent cab drivers who are now unable to reap a living owing to the inroads taxicabs have made on their fares.

FIRST SIGHT OF WHITE FACE

How a German Won Confidence of People Who Had Never Before Seen a European.

Bangkok—in the mountains of northern Malacca and southern Shan dwells a tribe of dwarf Negritos who, until a few months ago, knew nothing of the white man and his ways. From their hunting grounds they could almost see the foreign ships steam through the Malacca straits. Certain conveniences obtainable only from the whites had reached them through intermediate tribes; for example, they had become well acquainted with the Swedish safety matches, yet no white man had ever come in contact with them.

A German botanist, Albert Gruber, not long ago set out to make acquaintance with these shy people. With a few native servants he s drove to Charbonnel to the Hotel Louvre, searched his luggage, and locked through his papers, but without finding anything suspicious.

To my surprise, his morose expression disappeared, and in an almost cheerful tone he replied:

"I am glad to have you come. I am ready to go to you like. The sooner I can stand face to face with that bound and unmask him, the better. I know I shall have to pay a big penalty; but my revenge is cheap, even at the cost of heavy sentence."

"What bound?" I asked.

"Domínguez!" he shrieked.

"Domínguez, the biggest villain unbound!" He scolded me twice, the culling curiously unbound.

"I must see him at once," I insisted.

"Where can I find him?" And he carefully, don't try to trick me."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Wait here; he will be back in half an hour."

I took a chair. She called out to Madame Zaza that she was engaged with Monsieur Goron, and sat down, staring vacantly at the wall opposite. Then, after a while, a man's voice from the back-call, "Lucie!"

She turned toward me.

"There he is. See yourself, but remember my words."

I went to the back, and there before me stood a tall man of about thirty-five, answering in every description to my missing number five. For a few seconds we looked at each other.

"M. Charbonnel?" I asked. He nodded.

"I am M. Goron, and you will oblige me by coming to my office. I want to speak to you."

He bowed as assent.

I bowed as passing, and without having exchanged a word on the way, we arrived at the Prefecture.

The more I watched the man the more I felt impressed with his appearance. The grave eyes, the aquiline nose, the energetic mouth, the tokenized strength and will-power. I had given an uncanny chuckle. It a cigarette and lapsed into silence.

A large cabin in the stormer leaving the next day for Marseilles had been reserved for us, and Ravel came upon a party of the little men. The Negritos had left the bundles of rats they were carrying and concealed themselves in the undergrowth.

The German and his men knew exactly what they were to do in such a case. They were not to go an inch in pursuit. No weapon was to be shown. One of the men who could speak a little of the native dialect, attired in his accomplishment in Indian the gaitor way. The white man was their good friend and had come to see them. And what wonderful presents he had brought for his friends! The white man and his servants extended their arms, which were loaded with bright cottons, strings of beads, many colored necklaces, tobacco, and other tempting articles whose merits were extolled by the spokesman with all the eloquence he could command.

They knew the natives were beginning the bushes looking at the tempting sight and listening to the exhortation. Then the soldiers sat down, still holding out the beautiful presents. Finally an old man, the leader of the party, stuck his head out of the bush. He broke off a green twig and held it up. It was a sign of peace and the white man nodded to him. The ice was broken. Generosity Better Than Nothing.

The statement that the International Harvester company has decided to donate a million dollars to the cause of agriculture will not be received with much favor by the public. It is a little too "raw". The fact that the Harvester company has a million dollars to give away is a result of the fact that those engaged in agricultural pursuits have been charged a good many millions more for agricultural implements than such implements were worth. Justice, in this case, would be more appreciated than generosity.—Ex.

The above item from one of our exchanges is pened in a manner that would lead one to believe that the International Harvester Company was about the only corporation in the country that had been robbing the farmer in the past, but this is not the case, by any means.

There are many manufacturers of machinery who, by reason of a high protective tariff, which was established for the purpose of protecting our "infant" industries, have been charging the public twice what their machines were worth. In some cases the machines have been sold in foreign countries for half what they cost here, besides paying transportation charges and other costs that go with foreign shipments.

The farmers have not been the only ones to suffer. The printer, housewife, small manufacturer and a thousand others have had to dug up in order to keep the big fellows fat. The ultimate consumer has paid the freight and it is no wonder that the cost of living has been high.

If the International Harvester Company donates a million dollars to the cause of agriculture it will be but a small fraction of the money they have amassed during their existence, but it will be a million dollars donated to a good cause, which is something.

Test 400 Badger Cows.

Yearly records of the production of milk, solids, and fat for nearly 400 Guernsey, Holstein, and Jersey cows, with kinds and amounts of feed consumed, are published in Research Bulletin, 26 of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. These records are obtained in the Wisconsin Dairy Cow Competition conducted by Prof. F. W. Wall, in charge of dairy tests from November 1, 1909 to November 1, 1911. Results and conclusions drawn are given in less detail and in popular form in Bulletin 226, which may be had for the asking, while Circular 37, The Feed Unit System, tells the method by which different kinds of feeds eaten by the cows were reduced to a basis by which their economy of production could be compared. It was found that Holsteins averaged the most milk and butter fat and highest net returns per cow, while within each breed the larger cows yielded larger returns. In other words, profit or economy of production depends not so much on the breed as on the individual within the breed.

"W. H. Taft Lawyer."

On the fourth day of March a ruddy and smiling figure of imposing bulk will emerge from the front door of the White House, never probably to enter it again. It is a figure grown familiar to little knots of travelers at railway stations, to those prosperous citizens who make it a point of attending public dinners, to the street crowds of our cities. And the accompanying the raised silk "tile" is familiar, too.

Everywhere we see heads turned to look with answering good nature upon that broad retreating back. In Cincinnati, on March 5, he will probably hang out his shingle—"W. H. Taft, Lawyer"—and his friends will stop him on the way to the office for a cheery word or a whispered joke. And the public, which ached of his easygoing intelligence more than it had to give, will go about its business and forget him, or perhaps only recall his well meaning attempts to serve them with a half indulgent smile.—Collier's Weekly.

PITTSVILLE

(From the Record.)

Word from John Merritt, who went to Park Falls on the instance of the peculiar information of the death of his son, clears up a certain mystery in the tardiness of the Pittsville report. It will be remembered that Mr. Merritt got a telephone message stating that his son Jack had died and had been buried. That was all. The very meagreness of the report was enough to excite conjecture and it was with considerable of impatience that the investigation of Mr. Merritt was awaited. It is supposed that while hunting he was struck by lightning. All the indications of the finding of his body point to a death in this manner. If this is so it must have been a late storm, one of the last of the season. When found the body was so far decomposed that burial was of a necessity made instantly. The gun he carried was shattered at the stock and the locks torn off. No marks of other violence were found on the body of the man.

Since being appointed Justice of the peace for the town of Wood, Joseph Planning wants it understood that he will marry, free of charge, any old bachelors who have been providing him. This offer to hold good only until the first of the year. We are at a loss to know for sure if this is a scheme of Mr. Planning's to advertise himself as a marrying Justice, or if it is that he is getting satisfaction in "hooking up" certain fellows for the remainder of their lives. It's a good live offer to say the least.

Miss Olga Maske and Louis Strack of Arpin were married at the home of the bride's parents in the Town of Hansen last Saturday afternoon. The young couple will live on a farm near Arpin which is the property of the groom. Congratulations.

Generosity Better Than Nothing.

The statement that the International Harvester Company has decided to donate a million dollars to the cause of agriculture will not be received with much favor by the public. It is a little too "raw". The fact that the Harvester company has a million dollars to give away is a result of the fact that they engaged in agricultural pursuits have been charged a good many millions more for agricultural implements than such implements were worth. Justice, in this case, would be more appreciated than generosity.—EX.

The above item from one of our exchanges is penned in a manner that would lead one to believe that the International Harvester Company was about the only corporation in the country that had been robbing the farmer in the past, but this is not the case, by any means.

There are many manufacturers of machinery who, by reason of a high protective tariff, which was established for the purpose of protecting our "infant" industries, have been charging the public twice what their machines were worth. In some cases the machinery have been sold in foreign countries for half what they cost here, besides paying transportation charges and other costs that go with foreign shipments.

The farmers have not been the only ones to suffer. The printer, housewife, small manufacturer and a thousand others have had to hang up in order to keep the big fellow fat. The ultimate consumer has paid the freight and it is no wonder that the cost of living has been high.

If the International Harvester Company donates a million dollars to the cause of agriculture it will be but a small fraction of the money they have amassed during their existence, but it will be a million dollars donated to a good cause, which is something.

Test 400 Badger Cows.

Yearly records of the production of milk, solids, and the ton nearly 400 Guernsey, Holstein, and Jersey cows, with kinds and amounts of feed consumed, are published in Research Bulletin, 30 of the College of Agric Culture of the University of Wisconsin. These records are obtained in the Wisconsin Dairy Cow Competition conducted by Prof. F. W. Waller, in charge of dairy tests from November 1, 1909 to November 1, 1911. Results and conclusions drawn are given in less detail and in popular form in Bulletin 226, which may be had for the asking, while Circular 37, The Food Unit System, tells the method by which different kinds of feeds eaten by the cows were reduced to a basis by which their economy of production could be compared. It was found that Holsteins averaged the most milk and butter fat and highest net return per cow, while within each breed the larger cows yielded larger returns. In other words, profit or economy of production depends not so much on the breed as on the individual within the breed.

"W. H. Taft Lawyer."

On the fourth day of March a ruddy and smiling figure of imposing bulk will emerge from the front door of the White House, never probably to enter it again. It is a figure known familiar to little knots of travelers at railway stations, to those prosperous citizens who make it a point of attending public dinners, to the street crowds of our cities. And the accompanying the raised silk "tilo" is familiar, too.

(From the Record.)

Word from John Merritt, who went to Park Falls on the instance of the particular information of the death of his son, clears up a certain mystery in the cardines of the Pitts-ville report. It will be remembered that Mr. Merritt got a telephone message stating that his son Jack had died and had been buried. That was all. The very meagreness of the report was enough to excite conjecture and it was with considerable impatience that the investigation of Mr. Merritt was awaited. It is assumed that while hunting he was struck by lightning. All the indications of the finding of his body point to a death in this manner. It is so it must have been a late storm, one of the last of the season.

When found the body was so far decomposed that burial was of a necessity made instantly. The gun he carried was slivered at the stock and the locks torn off. No marks of other violence were found on the body of the man.

Since being appointed Justice of the peace for the town of Wood,

Joseph Pinning wants it understood that he will marry, free of charge, prodiging him. This offer to hold good only until the first of the year.

We are at a loss to know for sure if this is a scheme of Mr. Pinning's to advertise himself as a marrying Jeanette.

Medical authorities now claim that "writer's cramp" and other similar states of apparent muscular paralysis are actually due not to the tiring of the muscles, but to brain fever. It appears that the particular part of the brain which controls special combinations of muscle action, such as the movements of writing or the working of a telegraph key, tends to become more quickly exhausted in some individuals than in others. Such exhaustion leads to a state in which the brain is actually unable to send out its necessary messages to the hands and fingers to write, tap a key, hold a violin bow, etc. Furthermore, once the nerve cells, the "battery" of the brain, get thoroughly run down it is not easy to restore their energy. Heretofore it has been supposed that all trouble of the kind were due simply to overtaxing of the muscles concerned.

"Tess of the Storm Country" which will appear at Daly's Theatre on Friday, Dec. 6th is a dramatization of Grace Miller White's famous book of the same name by Rupert Hughes, author of "Exxon Ma" etc. It is a story of life along the shores of Lake Oayaga near Ithica New York, with a heroine from the fishing class.

Against the electrically lit sky of the "storm country" standing by the mysterious waters of Lake Oayaga the author sketches "Tess" as a girl of beauty and superb coloring—a kind of beauty that carried to its extreme power, may disrupt a kingdom! And Tess loves, not a rude uncouth fisherman, but a university student of aristocratic traditions, shave speech and courteous manners, a man far above Tess socially. How love acts upon such a temperament—a temperament that makes of a woman an angel or an outcast according to the character of the man she loves—is the theme of the story. Tess is character that will live in the memory long after the shallow, conventional heroines of society drama have been forgotten.—Advertisement.

Under the heading "Our born every minute" an exchange tells of the following election facts. One is that of a man who had to kiss the first ten horses he met on the street. In Connecticut a girl will have to kiss six cows in the presence of friends because Wilson was elected. A New Englander lost and had to hug all the lamp posts on a certain street. A Brooklyn man bet on Taft and must invite his mother-in-law to spend the winter with him. Samuel Green will have to go in bathing every Sunday for a month in Coney Island. A Brooklyn girl will have to give a gam drop to the first ten men she meets. A Montana ranchman lost his bet and will have to kiss his wife every few minutes. Many men will have to shave off their beards, sleep crosswise in bed, wear woman's bats or eat a New York artist hat to eat a crow bar. W. E. Chapin a New York artist had to eat a crow and Miss Katherine Henry of Plano, Illinois, will have to wear men's white socks all winter."

NEWS FROM NEARBY PLACES.

New London Press:—F. R. Constance, who lives a few miles out of Waupaca, has just built a new site that extends fourteen feet, below the ground. One day last week while he was driving his team near the opening, one horse fell into the site. The question as to how to get the horse out was a problem. Mr. Constance was equal to the emergency. He got a corn shredder at work and began to fill the site around the horse and succeeded in elevating him to the surface when he stepped out without a scratch.

Mr. Rohan, the democratic candidate for the assembly from this district who was defeated by Chas. Mori by a small margin has brought action against The Weekly Review.

Summons to appear within twenty days were served upon the Weekly Review today and the complaint is upon an editorial published in these columns on the 24th day of October which Mr. Rohan declares "That by means of such publication and the circulation thereof, the plaintiff was greatly injured in his reputation and was defamed for the assembly, all to his damage in the sum of ten thousand dollars (10,000.00)." Minahan & Minahan, lawyers of Green Bay, have charge of the case for the plaintiff.—Horterville Review.

1,000 to Marry.

The entire tribe of Winnebagos

Indians has decided to get married in formal tribal council, in which every man on the reservation participates, the Indians voted to forsake

the ways of their fathers and to marry in the white man's way. Now the Indians are preparing for the greatest "marriage" ever known.

As soon as the arrangements can be made about 1,000 couples of Indians will stand up at the altar at the same time and in the same ceremony.

When the big wedding is over the Winnebagos expect to be the richest tribe in the West.

Some time ago the government began allotting a farm to each Winnebago. Then arose the question of land for their children. And farther, to whom did the children belong? It was an almost superhuman task to which the government agents set themselves. But the work finally was completed, and each Indian received a farm. However, there remained a tremendous large amount of what is termed "heritage" and there was a question as to just whom that belonged. The wise Indians discussed the matter with the missionaries, the Indian agent, and with lawyers in Omaha. It was settled that the only remedy lay in marriage according to the state law.

New London Press.—W. R. Constance, who lives a few miles east of Waupaca, has just built a new silo which extends fourteen feet, below the ground. One day last week while he was driving his team near the opening, one horse fell into the silo. The question as to how to get the horse out was a problem. Mr. Constance was equal to the emergency. He got a corn shredder at work and began to fill the silo around the horse and succeeded in elevating him to the surface when he stepped out without a scratch.

Wm. Rohan, the democratic candidate for the assembly from this district who was defeated by Chas. Morey by a small margin, has brought action against the Weekly Review. Summons to appear within twenty days were served upon the Weekly Review today and the complaint is upon an editorial published in these columns on the 24th day of October which Mr. Rohan declares "that by means of such publication and the circulation thereof, the plaintiff was greatly injured in his reputation and was defeated for the assembly, all to his damage in the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00)." Minahan & Minahan, lawyers of Green Bay, have charge of the case for the plaintiff.—Horterville Review.

1,000 to Marry.

The entire tribe of Winnebago Indians has decided to get married. In formal tribal council, in which every man on the reservation participated, the Indians voted to forsake the ways of their fathers and to marry in the white man's way. Now the Indians are preparing for the greatest "marriage" ever known.

As soon as the arrangements can be made about 1,000 couples of Indians will stand up at the altar at the same time and in the same ceremony.

When the big wedding is over the Winnebagos expect to be the richest tribe in the West.

Some time ago the government began allotting a farm to each Winnebago. Then arose the question of land for their children. And farther, to whom did the children belong? It was an almost superhuman task to which the government agents set themselves. But the work finally was completed and each Indian received a farm. However, there remained a tremendous large amount of what is termed "homestead" and there was a question as to just whom this land belonged. The wiser Indians discussed the matter with the missionaries, the Indian agent, and with lawyers in Omaha. It was settled that the only remedy lay in marriage according to the state law.

Medical authorities now claim that "writer's cramp" and other similar states of apparent muscular paralysis are actually due to the firing of the muscles, but to brain fever. It appears that the particular part of the brain which controls special combinations of muscle action, such as the movements of writing or the working of a telegraph key, tends to become more quickly exhausted in some individuals than in others. Such exhaustion leads to a state in which the brain is actually unable to send out its necessary messages to the hands and fingers to write, tap a key, hold a violin bow, etc. Furthermore, once the nerve cells, the "batteries" of the brain, get thoroughly run down it is not easy to restore their energy. Heretofore it has been supposed that all troubles of the kind were due simply to overtaxing of the muscles concerned.

—Tess of the Storm Country" which will appear at Daly's Theatre on Friday, Dec. 6th is a dramatization of Grace Miller White's famous book of that name by Rupert Hughes, author of "Excuse Me" etc. It is a story of life along the shores of Lake Cayuga near Ithaca New York, with a heroine from the fishing class. Against the electrically lit sky of the "storm country" standing by the mysterious waters of Lake Cayuga the author sketches "Tess," as a girl of beauty and superb coloring—a kind of beauty that carried to its extreme power, may disrupt a kingdom! And Tess loves, not a rude mountaineer, but a university student of aristocratic descent, suave speech and courteous manners; a man far above Tess socially. How love acts upon such a temperament—a temperament that makes of a woman an angel or an outcast according to the character of the man she loves—is the theme of the story. Tess is a character that will live in the memory long after the shallow, conventional heroines of society dramas have been forgotten.—Advertisement.

BOSTON CHILD KEPT DIGNITY

Matron Meant to Be Kindly, But Youngster Was Not Conversationally Inclined.

This story has been going the rounds of Boston about the ten-year-old son of Director Russell of the old opera house.

One evening during an entr'acte at the opera house Master Russell was promenading alone in the foyer, in faultlessly evening dress—a very glass of fashion. A Boston matron, seeing that he was lonely, began to make herself "agreeable."

"You are Director Russell's little boy, aren't you?" she asked, with patronizing sweetness.

Master Russell resented this intrusion on his dignity, but his courtly manners were untroubled. "Yes, madam," he replied, with an elaborate bow.

"Where were you born?"

"In France, madam"—slightly more feigned.

"What part?" continued the lady, feeling the conversation well started.

"All of me, madam."

And he bowed and walked away.

Curious Russian Law.

Russia has a law which to outsiders observes seems almost to put a premium on theft by which stolen goods become the property of the thief! If you can prove that he has had possession of them for over five years. In the thieves' market—which is, of course, licensed by the police—goods that admittedly have been stolen (more than five years before) are openly offered for sale, and the place is a veritable Mecca for the light-fingered gentry and their enterprising friends, as also for the more honest members of society, who secure many a tempting bargain.

Muff.

Senator Borah was talking about a disgruntled political opponent.

"His attitude," said the eloquent senator, "reminds me of a young lady at the seashore."

"Discussing this young lady and a Chicago millionaire, a girl remarked: 'She says he's not a very good catch, after all!'

"Another girl, tossing her head, then made the comment:

"She says that, does she? Then he must have dropped her."

Too Great Expectations.

First Angler—Look, this fish was almost caught before; see the broken hook in its mouth.

Second Angler—it should have had some enough to steer clear of hooks after that.

First Angler—Oh, come, you can't expect a fish to exhibit more sense than a human being—Boston Transcript.

GHOSTS of the SEA

AS the reader ever heard the voice of the night-shrouded sea? Has he heard the wild wail of the raging hurricane and the weird whispers of the ambrosial calm? Has he seen ships creep out of the night when they blot out the stars with their darkling silhouettes, or when the sea and sky are one save for the gray patches of froth left trailing in the wake of breaking seas; has he seen great gray gulls coast out of the fog, or ships straining across the "moon glade" athwart the glitter of silver cast upon the waters by the impudent moonless, when the rays pierce the salis so that they become gaunt flims?

If he knows these things, who shall blame him for not scoffing at the superstitions of those who go down to the sea in ships? Will he not rather give an ear to the tales of strange things seen and believed by sailor-folk?

It is the writer's pleasure to waste time sailing the sea in a small craft, usually alone. Upon one of these voyages, having anchored upon the edge of the Nore Sands, he awoke in the middle of the night to find himself ensnared by a thick fog—dense enough the uninitiated reader will doubtless think. From looking out at the black woolly wall of fog that surrounded him, he distinctly upon the deck and cursed the Devil, swearing that he would round the cape if it took him till the day of judgment. Thereupon came a fair wind, he squared his yards and set off—although his ship plowed through the seas he made no headway, for the Devil had taken him at his word and doomed him to sail the seas for ever.

Superstition has it that the appearance of the phantom ship leads to certain and swift misfortune.

Old sailors will tell of the ship of the Flying Dutchman, sailing along in the very teeth of the wind, and of her overtaking their own ship which was beating to windward. Some of them say they have seen her sail clean through their eyes, the swirling flims of her sails and rigging leaving a cold clammy feeling like the touch of death.

The whaling in Nantucket, as you will remember, was in its palmy days carried on almost entirely by Quakers. One Sunday evening a meeting was in progress; the simple service seemed as though it might pass, and the spirit moved none of the company. The elder Friend was just about to offer his hand to his neighbor in the closing of the meeting, when a stranger rose and declared that the Lord's wrath was upon a certain whaling ship, and that he had seen her in a vision descending a huge wave from the hollow of which she never rose. The meeting stood hurriedly, but the speaker could not be found, and the ship was never heard of again.

The rocky coasts of New England are haunted by many ghost ships. The Palatine is the best known specter. The coasters and fishermen of Long Island Sound will tell you that, when a sight of her is gotten, disastrous and long-lasting storms will follow. The Palatine, a Dutch trader misled by false lights shown by wreckers, ran ashore upon Block Island in the year 1752. The wreckers, when they had stripped the vessel wrecks, set her on fire in order to conceal their crime; as the tide lifted her and carried her flaming out to sea, agonizing shrieks came from the blaze, and the figure of a woman who had hidden herself in the hold in fear of the wreckers stood out black amid the roaring blaze. Then the deck fell in and ship and woman vanished.

Some of the best ghost stories are those which the writer has heard from the simple folk of the salt marshes. It is hardly possible to describe these dreary districts, for when one has said they are flat, stretching for miles, and rather subject to winds, one has said pretty well all that is to be said—the rest must be left. However, just as there is a call of the sea, so there is a call of the marshland.

You shall go into the saltmarsh and feel its moist breath even your cheek, and the breath of its saltmarsh and the ozone of its salinity. You shall be lost in its vastness and, threading its innumerable twisted narrow waterways, which lead to nowhere, you shall tread its carpet of saltmarsh flowers. You shall go to its very edge where the sea comes oftenest, and where the flowers decaying leave their rust-colored remains. There you shall meet mud and the mud of the curlew shall mock as you flounder in its filth. The moon shall come up reflected by the mist into unrecognizable shape, which shall be blood color. You shall be a gray shape differing little from the common things that are there, for you shall be enshrouded by fog; nay, it shall sink into your very soul, until you are not flesh and bones, but a particle of fog yourself. You shall listen to its silences; you shall be told things by them, and, strong man that you are, you shall be afraid.

Sometimes the Solway fisherman to go out to meet the two Danish sea-rovers whose ships, upon clear nights, are seen gliding up one of the narrow channels which thread the diked-out sands, the high-curved prows and rows of shields along the gunwale glittering in the moonlight. These two piratical ships, it seems, ran into the Solway and dropped anchor there.

From apparently nowhere a ship had come—a cold uncannily glowing with an unnatural light. Her sails were surely cobwebs and her ropes were spider strings!

Strange sights and sounds frequently come the way of seafarers.

Among the rocks upon the rugged coast of Kerry was found one winter morning, early in the eighteenth century, a large galleon, mastless and deserted. The Kerry wreckers crowded aboard, and wild was their joy, for the ship was laden with ingots of silver from the Spanish Main. They gradually filled their boats with the gunwales were almost down to the water's edge, and hastily they pulled to the shore in order that they might return for further ingots before the tide rose and floated the ship away. Nearing the shore a huge tidal wave broke over boats and ship, and when the wave had passed, the horrified women watching on shore saw no sign remaining of boats, men, or ship.

Wild horses would not get near a Kerry fisherman to visit the scene of this disaster upon the anniversary of the day the tragedy took place, for only bad luck come to those who have seen the re-enactment of the affair, which Kerry folk believe takes place upon that day.

The Newhaven ghost ship signified her own doom. A ship built at Newhaven in January, 1647, having sailed away upon her maiden voyage, was thought to have been lost at sea, when one evening in June, during a furious thunder-storm, the well-known ship was sighted sailing up a dark night. Imagination does the rest; has seen the Flying Dutchman.

Cornelius Vanderdeem, a Dutch navigator of long ago, was making a passage from Batavia to the Solway, when he encountered heavy gales and baffling head winds while trying to round the Cape of Good Hope. Struggling against the winds as he would, he lost as much on one tack as he gained upon the other. Struggling vainly for nine hopeless weeks, he ultimately found himself in the same position as he was in at first, the ship having made no progress. Vanderdeem, in a fit of wrath, threw himself on his knees, and, with much dignity, "If I had admittit for burglar!" he roared.

He often hear of a man or a woman or an object of some sort that is proclaimed to be "worth his/her or its weight in gold." Did you ever stop to figure out what your weight in gold would be? Or your sweet heart? Or your baby? Or your favorite pipe? You can do it—just call you,

No More Bats for Him. Mrs. Greenwald, who is an enthusiastic attendant at all the camp meetings and revivals that happen in her neighborhood, had been speaking to a friend of a certain popular evangelist whom she greatly admired.

"His eloquence is perfectly wonderful," said she, "and when you consider what he sprang from—"

"He is a reformed tough, isn't he?" broke in the friend.

"Yes, yes," eagerly. "He used to be a baseball star."

NOT SUCH A GREAT AMOUNT

Worth One's Weight in Gold Has Been Accorded Altogether Too Much Significance.

You often hear of a man or a woman or an object of some sort that is proclaimed to be "worth his/her or its weight in gold." Did you ever stop to figure out what your weight in gold would be? Or your sweet heart? Or your baby? Or your favorite pipe? You can do it—just call you, proximately. The value of gold fluctuates. Usually it runs in price somewhere between $10 and $20 an ounce. Let's take the latter amount. It's easier to figure with. Gold is weighed by Troy weight, twelve ounces to the pound. In other words, ($20 an ounce) $240 a pound. Then your weight in gold is about $36,000. ("The capitalization" of a man who gets an $1,800-a-year salary.) Is your girl's weight 110 pounds? She is worth only about $26,400. Nearly $10,000 less than you keep her saying "Owe, and Hilt."

Upon her advice poor Ada obediently practised over and over again. "Mr. and Mrs. Halbert 'owe,' Mr. and Mrs. Halbert 'Owe,' but not to the anxious mother's satisfaction.

The Case Reversed.

Stevens Point Gazette.—It will be remembered that three years ago last May a boiler on one of the big dredges in the Oconto drainage ditch blew up, killing one man and injuring several others, one of the latter being Wm. Brey of Milladore, who hovered between life and death for several weeks. Since the accident his right arm has been practically useless.

Mr. Brey brought suit against the dredging contractors, Fornsetal & Downey of Milwaukee, and the case was tried in Milwaukee circuit court last November, seven days being devoted to the issue. A judgment for $7,000 was given the plaintiff, but the case was appealed to supreme court, which on Tuesday of this week reversed the decision.

The findings in detail are not known here as yet, but it is probable a new trial is ordered. Mr. Brey had hoped for a favorable outcome, and is therefore much disappointed. D. D. Conway of Grand Rapids is his attorney.

Gave Short Measure.

Jon. Krohn of the town of Easton was fined $25 and costs, the whole amounting to $32.05, in Justice R. N. Larmer's court Monday afternoon for having sold to Charles Bell a load of wood which he represented as a cord and which was considerably short. Krohn plead guilty and after being fined stated that he had no money. He was turned over to Sheriff O'Connor and will serve a thirty day jail sentence unless he thinks better of it to pay the fine and costs. When the wood was delivered Krohn gave a receipt for the money but signed another name instead of his own.—Record Herald.

The Case Reversed.

Stevens Point Gazette.—It will be remembered that three years ago last May a boiler on one of the big dredges in the Oconto drainage district blew up, killing one man and injuring several others, one of the latter being Wm. Brey of Milwaukee, who hovered between life and death for several weeks. Since the accident his right arm has been practically useless.

Mr. Brey brought suit against the drainage contractors, Forrestal & Downing of Milwaukee, and the case was tried in Milwaukee circuit court last November, seven days being devoted to the issue. A judgment for $7,000 was given the plaintiff, but the case was appealed to supreme court, which on Tuesday of this week reversed the decision.

The findings in detail are not known here as yet, but it is probable a new trial is ordered. Mr. Brey had hoped for a favorable outcome, and is therefore much disappointed. D. D. Conway of Grand Rapids is his attorney.

Gave Short Measure.

Joe Krohn of the town of Easton was fined $45 and costs, the whole amounting to $82.05, in Justice R. N. Larmer's court Monday afternoon for having sold to Charles Bell a load of wood which he represented as a cord and which was considerably short. Krohn plead guilty and after being fined stated that he had no money. He was turned over to Sheriff O'Connor and will serve a thirty day jail sentence unless he thinks better of it to pay the fine and costs. When the wood was delivered Krohn gave a receipt for the money but signed another instead of his own.—Record Herald.

The editor of a Kansas paper says that he picked up a Winchester rifle recently and started up the street to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the war path, and everyone he met insisted on paying all he owed. One man wiped out a debt of ten years' standing. On his return to the office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn, 10 bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips that had been brought in. Will someone lend us a Winchester for a day or so?
